THINK BEYOND THE DESK

Program Guide 2027-2028

LESS SITTING MORE NATURE

As a member of the Mohawks of Akwesasne First Nation, Maggie's connection to nature runs deep, thanks to the traditional teachings of her people.

She initially started a degree but quickly realized she craved a hands-on approach. That drive led her to Sault College's Fish and Wildlife Technician program. Now in her second year, Maggie isn't sitting behind a desk—she's out navigating the wilderness, applying practical skills, and studying wildlife firsthand. She loves that her summer co-op as an Assistant Field Technician with the Central Algoma Land Trust let her put her training to work, turning her education into real-world experience.
